What is RecyclART about?

Recycle by art is creative work made from discarded materials that once had another purpose. Creativity is occasional when starting from a waste product, and there is a potential for a new product. RecyclArt is an Erasmus+ project, in Adult Education section, focused that this process is projected and planned. The partners are 6 Organizations from Greece, Italy, Poland, Romania and Albania. We are all working on achieving projectual creative recycling, by engaging the stakeholders and a lot of interested people in our activities, such as meetings with local people, organizing local workshops, meetings with international partners, working together to incite recycling and reusing, in an ever-growing need for green economy and green jobs.

This newsletter will tell you about our partners meetings and our exchange platform which is an important output and a great resource for our users - recyclers/re-users/creators/artists.

If you want more information about all the activities, the outputs of the project and how you can further engage with us to benefit from our platform, visit our website.

Transnational Project Meeting in Tirana

On 6-7th of July 2022, The third Transnational Project Meeting was held in Tirana, where is located InSET as the Albanian Partner of the project. The meeting was hybrid because of the pandemic consequences on traveling. Partners from Poland, FRAME were attending online, while all the other partners were attending the meeting in place.

The meeting focused on all the activities fulfilled during the last period and also the planning for the next period. After the energy in the beginning with presentations of coordinator organization and the host organization InSET, the team presented the completed outputs of the second phase and the reports that organizations made for their local workshops.

The invited Albanian fashion designer with a long experience in clothes recycling methods talked about her experience with RecyclART local workshop and described her teaching experience while instructing participants to make bags out of old jeans. Nowadays people are getting much more sensitized in environmental matters and this is evident by their effort to always provide with materials for our recyclART project.

Some main conclusions of the partnership in this TPM:

- The RecyclART method works with all different types of unemployed people through the workshops
- Someone who initially belongs to the unemployed people can migrate to the second group of artists after experiencing the RecyclART method, by studying the handbook and practicing the exercises.
- The partnership managed to produce even more than expected as the handbook and many materials include Vocal Orientation Exercises and A useful guide for someone who organizes a RecyclART workshop.
- Decisions on next phase and the platform as well as partners responsibilities for the success of our platform on recycling opportunities, will support all the action.

Transnational Project Meeting in Patras

On 21 & 22 of February the RecyclART partnership met in Patras - Greece for the 4th and final transnational project meeting of the RecyclART project, hosted by the coordinator the Ecological Movement of Patras.

The team has been working on the project for almost 2 years and meeting face to face brings great joy! We worked around project activities such as our multiplier event that will take place in March. The main topic of the meeting though was the RecyclART platform which will be a free open space aimed for adults (especially long term unemployed), recycling artists, artists in general, adult educators, people interested in creative recycling and skill-building pathways and sharing ideas and items with the community. The partnership monitored the progress of the platform and planned the final steps in order to release the intellectual outputs of the project to the public. We are excited to share with everyone the final results, so stay tuned!

Exchange platform for recyclers

One of our most anticipated results is now available to explore.

The RecyclART Exchange Platform is a space where all people interested in recycled art have a spot to show and explore their recycling crafts; to find and exchange materials; to share their journey and find support from like-minded people.

The platform has a number of key sections that provide something for everyone:

- If you are interested in exploring the art and projects that others are posting, then you should visit the Explore Artwork & Tutorials section
- If you are here because you want to find materials near you, then definitely check out the Find Recycling Materials section
- And if you want to share your own projects or you'd like to offer materials to others, then make sure to register and then check-out our platform guide.
